Viviane Chassot

“The interpretation is perfect of its kind. Freshness, control, and sensitivity combine together in the most beautiful way.” Alfred Brendel, the doyen of pianists, praised her interpretation as being one of the best available recordings of Joseph Haydn’s piano sonatas.

Concerts

Viviane Chassot, born in Zurich, sets new standards with her interpretations on the accordion. She appears in solo and chamber music performances throughout the world, in concert halls including the Philharmonie Berlin, Gewandhaus Leipzig, Guggenheim Museum New York, Konzerthaus Wien, Wigmore Hall, and Tonhalle Zurich. She works with such conductors as Simon Rattle, Riccardo Chailly, David Zinman and Heinz Holliger and makes guest appearances at international festivals. In August 2014 she was Artist in Residence at the Murten Classics Festival. A versatile musician, she crosses stylistic boundaries and combines the genres of classical music, jazz, new music, and improvisation. In recent years Viviane Chassot has performed many world premieres and was the winner of a Kranichstein Music Prize. She was also honored with the Swiss Ambassador’s Award London in 2015. Viviane Chassot, an artistic personality with international charisma and a pioneer in her field, she received the Swiss Music Prize 2021.

Biography

(2011) earned wide praise and attracted international interest. Her playing has drawn the admiration and enthusiasm of famous musical personalities. Alfred Brendel praised her interpretation as being one of the best recordings of Joseph Haydn's piano sonatas: "The interpretation is perfect in its kind. Freshness, control, and sensitivity combine together in the most beautiful way."

Her portrait CD New Horizons (GENUIN, 2014) with original works for accordion was nominated for the German Record Critics' Award. Also her latest CD objets trouvés with works for accordion and zither (GENUIN, 2016). Increasing critical attention led to Chassot's signing by the Sony label, becoming surely the only accordionist in the illustrious history of the label's roster. She released her Sony debut, an album of Haydn Keyboard concertos, with the Basel Chamber Orchestra, which she conducted from the accordion. The album received strong critical acclaim. In April 2021 her new CD with solo works by J.S.Bach was released.

Viviane Chassot lives as a freelance musician in Basel.
